"Live Young Blood" takes a rare look at the men and women committed to ending youth violence. From McElderry Park to the Upton community, filmmakers Bobby Marvin Holmes and Justin Gladden explore the heart of urban communities for honest stories told by those deeply impacted by the epidemic of violence.

Casey McKeel sat down for a conversation with the filmmakers of the new documentary that takes a look at youth violence in Baltimore.

Bobby Marvin Holmes and Justin Gladden talk about their film, Live Young Blood, what they learned about the epidemic of youth violence, and share stories of those committed to making a change. Their film screens at Morgan State University, April 16th at 6pm.
